Journalist's Lieutenant Confers With Colonel — Bryan on the Lorimer Incident

[BY UNITED PRESS.]
New York, Sept. 16.—An alliance between Roosevelt and Hearst to unite in a fight against the New York "bosses" was almost conceded when John Temple Graves, Hearst's chief political lieutenant, called on the Out-look offices this afternoon at Roosevelt's request. Graves and the Colonel were closeted for a long time. Both refused to talk after the meeting. During the morning Roosevelt also conferred with several of his henchmen and made it plain he expects to control the state convention and force it to adopt a progressive platform. He refused to comment on the report that he will not oppose him in 1912.

MEMORABLE CELEBRATION OF MEXICAN CENTENNIAL

National Monument Dedicated—Diaz Reviews 10,000 Troops—20 Foreign Countries Officially Represented

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
City of Mexico, Sept. 16.—Hordes playing, soldiers marching, streets adorned with bunting and throngs in holiday attire have made this, the principal day of the Mexican centennial celebration at that capital, the most important of the city. Early this morning the inhabitants of the capital, the most of whom had remained on the streets until a late hour last night to enjoy the magnificent pyrotechnical displays, were aroused from their sleep by heralds who made it officially known that the great day of celebration was at hand. Before 10 o'clock the streets and public squares were filled with men, women and children who were prepared to witness the day's elaborate program of festive view and ceremonies. Thousands of visitors from the surrounding towns added to the immense crowds.
The city had put on its gayest attire. Leading merchants had vied with each other in contributing to the brilliancy of the display. The decorations of the Avenida Chapultepec de Mayo, the Avenida San Francisco, the Avenida 16 de Septiembre, the Avenida Juarez, and other important and well known thoroughfares in the heart of the business section of the city, were especially profuse. All the public buildings were decked in the most elaborate manner. Unusually brilliant and magnificent were the decorations on the handsome public buildings around "the Zocalo," the famous plaza on which fronts the National Palace and several of the principal government buildings.
The two big events of the day were the dedication of the national monument to Independence in the Paseo de la Reforma and the great military parade, which took place immediately after the dedication ceremony. To-night the official opening of congress with the annual message of President Diaz forms an appropriate close to one of the most memorable days in the history of the republic.
The grand military parade included 10,000 soldiers, representing every Captain Denbrook, who showed up so favorably against Pennsylvania last year, will lead the Wolverines. Coach Smith is with the Pennsylvania squad at Mt. Gretna, Penn., and prophesies a great outlook for the University of Pennsylvania. Ted Coy will be an important factor in the coaching of Yale's team and predicts that 1910 football will be cleaner and better than ever before, with Yale in the lead.

NOT HALF THE LEAF CROP YET SECURED

Buying of the Better Grades Has Commenced—Slight Improvement in Market for Old Goods.
(Edgerton Tobacco Reporter.)
The buying of the better selections of the new crop is now under way in several sections of the state. While the movement has not yet reached such a scramble as is witnessed in other seasons, buyers are plentifully riding in the Vernon county and Orfordville sections and contracts for several hundred acres secured. Prices range generally from 10 to 11 cents for the grades for bundle delivery with an occasional rise of those figures. Chas. Nelson sold 10a at 10 1/2c and Wm. Gardner 8a at 10 1/2c. The selling of hulled and storm broken lots continues around the 6c mark. A very large share in most damaged sections is now under contract. In this deal the American Tobacco Co. or its subsidiary concerns have figured quite extensively and hold the bulk of the contracts. The buyers of the American Cigar Co. have been most active, too, in opening the market for the better grades, which for no reason very satisfactory prices are paid. What there is of a crop this year is unusually late and under the most favorable conditions scarcely more than half of it can be safely harvested by the close of the present week, when in the ordinary season the crop is practically secured by Sept. 15th. The inference is natural, therefore, that field buying under such circumstances promotes the harvesting of immature tobacco which is greatly to be regretted; for it is generally conceded that the harvesting of unripe tobacco is the chief cause of damage sustained through mold in recent years. The lee now being broken, it is likely that buying will become more general in all sections.
While there prevails a stronger inquiry for old goods, the market shows but a slight improvement. At 10c a lot of '09 has been sold by a local packer this week. H. T. Sweeney reports the sale of two cars of '09 to Hume's. J. M. Estes delivered a 11 acre crop of '09 to Sweeney on Saturday.
The harvest is proceeding but the weather conditions of the week have been much against the hurrying of this work. Cool nights and cloudy days are delaying the ripening and much of the tobacco cut is shelled without wilting. Not half the crop is yet secured and the time for frost is near at hand. At least two or three weeks more of warm weather is needed to see the later fields safely housed.

FRIENDS ASSIST DEAF MUTE GIRL

Ellen Marty, Stranded in This City, Restored to Her Mother Today.
Had it not been for kind hearted passengers, Ellen Marty, a deaf mute twelve years old, might have found herself stranded in this city last night without friends or a place to sleep. The young girl was on her way from town, where she had been visiting an uncle, to the state school for the deaf at Delavan. She expected to be met by her mother at the St. Paul passenger station in this city but was disappointed.
Fellow passengers, who noticed her on the train, determined to see that she met someone who would care for her and when they found that her mother was missing, notified the police. It was first thought that her mother was employed in one of the local laundries and an unsuccessful effort made to locate her. As the girl was badly frightened Mrs. Floyd Mardock kindly offered to keep her over night.
This morning, Mrs. L. Cain of N. Franklin St., notified the police that the girl's mother was not employed in this city but in the laundry of the state institute at Delavan. Mrs. Cain knew the family well and stated that Mrs. Mary wanted there in order to secure an education for her daughter, who was the only one of seven children left her, the other six having been cared for by the state. Arrangements were made this morning to notify Mrs. Marty and send her daughter to Delavan.

True Secret of Living.
The secret of living is the discovery of the greatest good, the things that are really worth the seeking, the values that do not fade nor depreciate. The greatest good you can do any person or people is to train them to make this discrimination, to help them to choose for themselves amongst the many possible prizes the ones that are worthy.

The Difference.
A fool is unable to see his own faults. A wise man, seeing his own faults, is able to keep other people from noticing them.

Happiness Within Us.
Our happiness mainly depends on the freedom that reigns within us; a freedom that widens with every good deed and contracts beneath acts of evil. Not metaphorically, but literally, does Marcus Aurelius find himself each time he discovers a new truth in indulgence, each time that he pardons, each time he reflects.—Master-luck.

Better Look Outside.
If you want to make the best of your life, don't spend much time in looking within and wondering if your feelings are all right. Look outside instead, and see what you are doing for others, what you are saying about other people, how you are behaving to those around you. If you are behaving kindly and truly to your neighbor you will not go far wrong.

THE THEATER

An Intense Drama.
Of the novelists of great sway thirty years ago and more, none is better remembered than Mrs. E. D. S. Southworth, whose fifty or more novels had a tremendous vogue, and many of which are familiar to the present generation.

"Ismael" and "Self Ralsed" were her best and the wish that they might be reproduced on the stage has been uttered more times than there are pennies in the mint. At last they have been dramatized by no less a person than Miss Grace Hayward, whose "St. Elmo" and "Grandeur" have delighted thousands.

The new play, given the name "Ismael" is to be offered at the Opera Theatre Tuesday, Sept. 20, matinee and evening.

Miss Hayward has compressed the great wealth of material into four acts, or really a prologue and three acts. The play tells the story of "Ismael's" humble birth and his rise to fame, between which periods there is much to attract the lover of a good melodramatic stage offering.

Two acts have their locale in the south and two across the sea. The story of the vain and selfish Claudia is related in well knit texture and there is some smart comedy, although in the main the tone is intense. Of course there is a happy ending, but it comes in the way of a surprise after all. To condense "Ismael" for stage purposes was a formidable task, but Miss Hayward is declared to have accomplished it neatly.

IRISH LEADERS TO INVADE AMERICA.

London, Eng.—Every principal city in the United States and Canada will be covered by the coming invasion of the Irish party, members of which include T. P. O'Connor, John T. Redmond, Joseph Devlin, M. P., and Daniel Boyle.

The party leaves on the Baltic September 17. It is in many respects the most important delegation ever sent to America. Redmond's leadership of the party and brilliant success during the last year have been such that scores of cities will be delighted to have the opportunity of hearing and welcoming the members of his party. Information from America shows that the mission will receive an overwhelming welcome and will bring the biggest results of any mission since the great one of Parnell, 30 years ago.

New York and Chicago will be visited, but the first meeting at which all will attend will be Buffalo, where 30 years ago, the first convention forming the Irish organization in America met. Then all will separate, each taking different routes. Redmond to the middle states, Devlin to the south and Boyle to the west as far as San Francisco.

Mr. O'Connor's meetings have been arranged for in Montreal, Quebec, Ottawa and Toronto, and even British Columbia.

SIFTING OF ALL FOOD INTERESTS IS PLANNED

Government is Preparing to Make Sweeping Investigations of Alleged Combinations.

Washington, Sept. 16.—The grand jury of the District of Columbia which will convene October 1st will begin a searching inquiry of wide scope into the subject of the high cost of living. The sift in Washington is to be one of many to be pushed at the instance of the administration, according to authentic information given out.

Several months ago investigation of the general cause of the "high cost of living" was undertaken by the attorney general's office, but that now contemplated will be in detail and directed against specific supposed causes of high prices.

Milk prices have increased almost simultaneously throughout the western country. In Washington both the producers and dealers are said to be planning a boost for the consumers of this city.

United States Attorney Clarence Wilson issued an ultimatum that an increase in the price of milk will mean investigation and indictments by the grand jury.

Another subject for investigation will be an alleged laundry combine, which is said to constitute the Washington laundrymen's exchange.

Attorney General Wickham soon will go after the grain interests in the middle west. It is understood, thus entering the fire of the administration on all sources of food supply.

Material reduction in the cost of living within the next six months is the aim of the administration, as hinted in the preparations for renewed activity against combines alleged to control food stuffs, and to this end it is expected that hundreds of indictments will be presented by United States attorneys throughout the country.

WILSON NAMED FOR GOVERNOR.

New Jersey Democrats Select Princeton President for Standard Bearer.
Trenton, N. J., Sept. 16.—Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton university, was nominated on the first ballot by the Democratic convention as its candidate for governor.

In accepting the honor Mr. Wilson expressed this sentiment:

"The time when you can play politics and fool the people has gone by. Now it is a case of put up or shut up. Parties must show that they are working, not solely for offices, but for the common interest. The great issues of this campaign are a reorganization of and economy in state administration, equalization of taxes among the people and corporations and state control of corporations. To these problems and their solution I pledge myself."

On the installment plan.
One day Robert said, "Uncle Bill, how much do you want for those pupae?" "Oh, about $2 apiece," was the reply. "But, Uncle Bill," said Robert, "what could I do with a piece of pupae?"—The Economist.

Hearty Meat Eaters.

An Eskimo will devour greedily 20 pounds of meat a day. A Russian Tartar will eat in 24 hours 40 pounds. Capt. Cochrane mentions a Tartar who consumed in that time the hind quarters of a large ox, 20 pounds of fat and a proportionate quantity of melted butter for drink. These of his tribes the Yakuti—think nothing of polishing off a reindeer at a meal.

People almost universally turn to me after I have extracted a tooth for them, and say:

"Why, Dr. Richards, that is the easiest tooth I ever had extracted."

I am getting patients from long distances for no other reason than that I actually do take out teeth without hurting a particle.

FOUR NOTABLE IN MUSIC WORLD.

Left to right, Pietro Mascagni, Miss Bessie Abbott, Luigi Illica and Signor Vanni, a wealthy landowner and musical enthusiast of Castellana, Italy, where Illica's home is located. The photograph here produced was taken on the balcony of the chateau of Luigi Illica, librettist of the operas "La Bohème," "Mina, Butterfly" and "Tosca," and also of Mascagni's newest grand opera, "Yabed," which is to be produced in New York in November by Leichter & Co. The remarkable incident in connection with this production is the fact that it is the first time a grand opera will have been sung in America before it has been presented to European audiences. This fact has caused a storm of protest in Italy. "Yabed" is being given its finishing touches by Pietro Mascagni, the world's most famous living composer, and as it was written especially for the American prima donna, Miss Bessie Abbott, the singer was invited to participate in the final work of composer and librettist.

The Ticklemouse

—and his Sleepyland Adventures

By Roy Rutherford Bailey with Davy and Dorfy

A Trip by Monorail

"For that sleepy feeling," smiled the Ticklemouse as he watched Davy and Dorfy rubbing their tired eyes. "How would a trip by monorail do?"

"Monorail?" The twins looked doubtful.

"It's the new railroad car," explained the Mouse, "which doesn't need two rails to run on—only one. They've just put one in at Niagara Falls. Like to try it?"

"The twins couldn't understand how a car could run on one rail—any more, as Willy said, than a mouse could run on one foot. But they eagerly agreed, and were soon whirling toward the falls in the Ticklemouse's airship.

"Up there it is," said their friend, as soon as they had settled to earth beside the mighty river. Davy and Dorfy looked in vain for a car track; all they could see was a single wire cable stretched high in air over the brink of the falls.

"What holds it on?" they asked, when they had allowed the Mouse to lead them up the stairway and into the strange looking car. The thing seemed rather risky to the twins.

"The gyroscope—a new kind of top," and the Mouse opened a cabinet in the floor of the car and pointed to a heavy wheel below. "I can't explain it to you'll understand it, but when you're a little older I'll try. For the present, though, let's just enjoy a new kind of ride. Ah—here we go! Like flying, isn't it?"

It was a queer way of traveling, and Willy enjoyed it greatly. He was sitting with his feet on the seat before him, dreamily gazing out at the lovely night, when a cry arose. "The gyroscope—the gyroscope has stopped! We're lost!"

Willy had read up on monorails enough to know what that meant. He hesitated never a moment, but stood on one leg, shut one eye, wished—and was gone! And in a moment the gyroscope started humming again, the car slowly righted itself, and sped silently on across the gorge.

And when they were going down the stairs on their way back to their airship, Willy suddenly joined them again—weak and dizzy, but safe and sound. His uncle looked sharply at him.

"Young mouse," he said, "was that you in the gyroscope?"

"Sure pop," cried Willy. "Rather neat, eh? It struck me 'twas our only chance—for me to jump in and play gyroscope! But I hope next time they'll have a substitute ready, so I won't have to keep it up so long at a stretch. Your little Willy's always willing, but a few minutes of that's enough to turn a Cause for Suspicion.

For three Sundays in succession the pastor of a certain church was gladdened by the appearance of a backsliding husband in his wife's pew. Then suddenly this gratifying exhibition of an awakened conscience ceased. One day the pastor met the delinquent in a street car.
"I have not seen you at church for some time," said the preacher.
"No," was the candid reply, "I had to give it up. My wife got too suspicious."
"Suspicious?" exclaimed the parson.
"Yes," said the man, "she got it into her head that I was up to some awful devilry outside that I was trying to atone for by going to church. Nothing I could say or do could convince her otherwise, so in order to show her that I was living a square life I had to stay away from church."

WILL REVEAL REAL THIEF

FITZGERALD, FORMER SUB-TREAS-URY TELLER, SAYS HE WILL CLEAR UP MYSTERY.

RELEASED ON $50,000 BOND

Accused Man Confident He Can Clear Himself of Theft Charge—Threatens to Implicate Two Prominent Politicians—Evidence Outlined.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—George W. Fitzgerald, who is under arrest charged with stealing $173,000 from the Chicago sub-treasury while he was assisting teller in 1907, was released on bonds in the sum of $50,000 after Judge Landis had refused his counsel's motion to reduce the bail to $25,000.

Immediately after his release Fitzgerald threatened to implicate two prominent politicians in the theft. He said he would give their names to Judge Landis.

Fitzgerald was taken before Judge Landis from the county jail, where he passed the night, by United States deputy marshals. Attorney Edward R.
Litzinger, representing the accused man, made a motion that the bond be reduced. This was denied by the court.

Court Gives Its Reasons.

"This defendant is a resident of Chicago, has a family here, and is in no line of business at present," pleaded Attorney Litzinger. "Therefore, I think your honor should reduce the bond."

"Because of the nature of the charge and in view of the fact that the defendant was supposed to have guarded the sub-treasury from such loss, the motion is denied," the judge answered.

Fitzgerald's bondsmen were James Ralph and W. H. Joyce, a relative of
P. H. Joyce, president of the Illinois
Bolt, Nut and Forging company, which the defendant is said to have organized with money alleged to have been stolen from the government.

Believes He Knows "The Thief."

Before he left the county jail Fitzgerald declared that he was innocent.
He expressed confidence that he would be cleared of the charge of stealing $173,000 from the Chicago sub-treasury.

"All the money I have I got honestly," he said, "and I will have no trouble in proving that I am not a crook. I did not take that money from the sub-treasury, but I think I know who did. I am not going to tell now, however. I may tell Judge Landis some time."

"This man at one time was under government surveillance. He probably will be again."

"I have been engaged in many transactions, and the money I have I made in honest investments."

Fitzgerald denied that he owned stock in the Illinois Bolt, Nut and Forging company under an assumed name. He said he held $1,700 worth of stock in the concern in his own name. He also said that he had resigned as secretary of the car repairing company.

Evidence is Outlined.

The evidence which the government expects to convict Fitzgerald briefly stated is:

The purchase of Lake Forest property valued at $55,000 by James and John Gordon, friends of Fitzgerald, said to have been made with money
furnished by Fitzgerald.

The visit of James Gordon, a man of no wealth, to Scotland, where he is said to have spent money lavishly and to have purchased jewelry which it is charged was for Fitzgerald.

The purchase of stock in the Illinois Bolt, Nut and Forging company and in the Chicago Car Repair company of Hammond by the prisoner.

The accusation by Fitzgerald in egg and produce.

The purchase of Rogers Park home
for $8,500 by Fitzgerald.

The alleged lavish display of wealth
by Fitzgerald since the government set its trap by announcing that the statute of limitations had given the defendant immunity.

FAVORS CONTROL OF RAILROADS.

Senator Beveridge Speaks Before Indiana Bankers' Association.

Evansville, Ind., Sept. 16.—In a speech before the State Bankers' association Senator Beveridge took strong ground in favor of control of railroads. He said in part:

"If the federal government controls and regulates banks, there is no reason why it should not control and regulate the railroads of the land. The directors of a bank are held to strict accountability for their deeds and if they violate a law they are punished and there is no reason why the directors of a railroad should not be punished when the railroad company fails to live up to the law."

"If the government regulates the capitalization of banks, there is no reason why it should not regulate the capitalization of railroads."

A Passing Acquaintance.

"Harry," said the traveling man's wife, "I have a letter from a friend in Lansinghurst. Have you any customers there?" The drummer said no.

"Then you don't know anybody in that town?"

"Not intimately. Of course I know everybody there by sight."

"Why, how can that be?"

"They all come down to the railway station when the five o'clock afternoon passenger train stops to let the overland express go by."—Youth's Companion.

Mann's Plurality Slender.

Congressman Mann won renomination by a comparatively slender plurality, about as many votes being cast against him also as for him.

Congressman Wilson in the Third district, the only Illinois representative who has manifested progressive convictions, captured his renomination by a vote of three to one.

Col. Ira Copley, the aggressive Republican insurgent in the district now represented by Congressman Snapp, defeated George W. Conn, Jr., by a plurality of 468 votes.

In other districts outside of Chicago
the progressive upsurge in the Republican party left traces of far traveling ground waves. Speaker Cannon himself was renominated by a greatly reduced plurality. In the Lowden district State Senator McKenzia defeated
Reuben Tiffany by about 900 votes.

Browne and Frederick Win.
Representative Lee O'Neil Browne
outdistanced all his competitors in La Salle county.

State Senator John Broderick, under indictment in Sangamon county won by a vote of almost 2 to 1.

Robert E. Wilson, in the Sixth district, also won handsly.

Speaker Shurtliff was renominated
by a plurality of more than 2,000 votes.

Later returns indicate that the Legislative Voters' league was badly beaten throughout nearly all the precincts in Chicago. It was in this field that the league made its hardest fight.
The Republican and the Democratic "organization" candidates won practically without a break for county nominations.

FORESTERS LODGE IN TROUBLE

Supreme Body Seeks to Dissolve Insurance for Fraud.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 16.—Suits has been brought before Judge Holt of Minnesota to dissolve the Minneapolis Rankham Court of the Independent Order of Foresters and cancel all the insurance of Minneapolis members of the order. It is charged that there was intent to defraud, and that if all the policies of the present members of the court were paid it would take $35,000 more than the order has.

It is charged that a number of members were insured as being under 55 and in good health, when in fact they were over that age and in ill health.
One case cited is that of a woman
75 years old.

The supreme court of the order, a Canadian organization, is complainant.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

DOES it ever occur to you when something very unpleasant happens, that it isn't as bad as it seems? Among my friends I have one incurable optimist. From every unkind blow that fate deals him—and it has dealt him several very harsh ones—he recovers himself with a smile. And it isn't by any means the silly grin of the cheerful idiot—who doesn't know enough to be down in the mouth, either. It is the rainbow smile of the man worth while.

The man who can smile. When everything goes dead wrong. In sheer amazement at his refusal to appear in the least disconcerted, just after a knock-down blow that would have made most men go about looking like walking tombstones, I insisted one day that he explain himself, and he gave me that first sentence as the key to his optimism.

"When I was a little boy and anything I didn't like happened, I always tried to comfort myself with that. 'Isn't it as bad as it could be?'"

"No matter what the trouble was—whether I broke my leg or one of my pet rabbits died, or I didn't get the skates I wanted for Christmas, I'd always cheer myself up with that. 'Isn't it as bad as it could be?'"

"And I still do."

A funny little notion, isn't it? But isn't there a whole philosophy of life in it?

There are two points of view from which to look on life, and I am more and more coming to think that the question of happiness and unhappiness depends far more on which point of view you take than on the circumstances of your life.

Seems to me as if all the world might be divided into two classes—the people who dwell on the mountain top of "Isn't it as bad as it could be?" and the people who dwell in the valley of "It's never as good as it is."

The people on the mountain are always looking compassionately down and seeing folks less fortunate than they.

The people in the valley are always looking enviously up and seeing folks who have much more than they.

The people on the mountain top have a way of always looking at the good things they possess.

The people in the valley never seem to see anything but the desirable things they lack.

There was an optimist in life the other day to this effect: "The feminine pessimist worries because she is not as young as she once was; the optimist rejoices that she is not as old as she will be."

The first, you see, lived in the valley of "It's never as good as it is better," and the second on the mountain of "Isn't it as bad as it could be?"

Of course they're both right. They both see things as they are.

The only difference is that the mountain dwellers are happy and the valley dwellers are not.

Which class do you belong to? Or are you apt, like me, to migrate from one to the other?

If you are, why don't you do as I think I shall—have the motto of the mountain dwellers printed and hung where I can daily see it and daily be reminded into optimism by it:

"Isn't it as bad as it could be?"

ABELATED VACATION.

By MARY RUSSELL. Now that the summer is over and the guests are gone and the children are in school it is time for mother and father to take a real rest.

They have enjoyed the visiting and gaiety. They love all the merry throng of youngsters but the grind of entertaining falls hard on father's pocketbook and still harder on mother as the responsible head of the house.

Now that there is no need to keep on the tension it is time for them to relax and run away for a brief rest, free from even the cares of the beloved children.

"But I must look after the girls' clothes and help the boys with their lessons," is the motherly protest.

"I have a big deal coming on and it is time to look after the fall business," groans father.

What of it? All that work and worry will be here long after you are quietly at rest in your last home.

Some one will attend to it efficiently and well. Give those others a chance now to demonstrate their ability. Send to the old folks' home if you have no old maid aunt, or dependent relatives, or friend who would enjoy playing chaperone for your household of pretty girls and gay boys.

Have a dear old mother who has loved and lost a family, sit enthroned among the children while you are away. Impress it upon them that this dear old lady must be made to have a joyous time. It is her holiday. Let her feel that she is an honored guest, whose duty is to be the gentle watcher of grins and boyish good times.

The responsibility for her happiness will act as a check on superabundant spirits, and place a certain sobering responsibility upon the young shoulders that will not be too heavy a weight, but will simply serve to steady and strengthen the child.

Responsibility! Do I sing too much to this strain? It is such a big thing and so valuable in the training of children that no matter what direction one starts to reason, it comes back again and again to this point as the marker to the North star.

Having set your hearts at rest for the children go gaily and merrily where you will both be happy together. It will prove a season of strength and power to husbands and wives who have begun to drift apart on the sea of manifold duties. It will build in a strand of youth to the fast aging tissues. It will let sunshine into the heart.

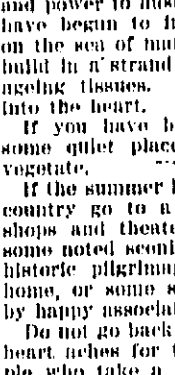

If you have been over gay go to some quiet place; Hunt, fish, drift, vegetate.

If the summer has been spent in the country go to a city and enjoy the shops and theaters. Take a trip to some noted scenic wonder, or make a historic pilgrimage to some author's home, or some spot dear to memory by happy associations.

Do not go back to the old home. My heart aches for the middle aged people who take a first trip back home after years of separation. They have all their memories and gain only sad ones for the changes which time has wrought in them becomes doubly apparent as they compare the faces and places they remember, with the faces and places that they see.

The children should see that mother has at least one frilly, frivolous gown, and a tailor suit that will make her happy to the center of her heart every time she puts it on. Go without something yourself, if you must, but see that this is done. The father must be well dressed also and have the ties and socks that delight his son. What if he never wears them again; they will make him happier.

Then pretend, oh father and mother, that this is the honeymoon, and so where the moonlight and sunlight are tempered by love, and grow young. Be exceedingly happy, for it is worth while and will pay big dividends. Do not worry, or quarrel, or struggle, but just be happy and the whole winter will be brighter for this stored sunshine.

Modern World a New One. The fabric of the engineer's art has so overspread the earth that the world of our fathers has disappeared and a new world has taken its place.

Walking Honeymoon in Germany. The walking honeymoon is a custom. Young couples who prefer to keep their money or who haven't any for a wedding trip by train, swing knapsacks over their shoulders on the wedding day and set out for a week's tramp, stopping over night at the roadside tavern. I remember being told a story in the Bavarian Alps of the gloomy young man whose extreme melancholy at the village inn caused sympathetic inquiries. He confessed that he had been married the day before to the belle of the village, and as they didn't have means for both of them to take a wedding trip, he had been obliged to tramp alone.

Four Thousand Mexican Children Receive New Clothing in Order to Make a Presentable Appearance in the Centennial Celebration.

Senora Carmen Rubio De Diaz, wife of President Porfirio Diaz of Mexico, whose pride is said to have inspired the movement.

Typical Mexican Children in their "store clothes."

Mexico City, Sept. 16.—As proof that no detail has been spared in making the centennial celebration now in progress in Mexico the best in the history of this southern republic, four thousand school children, who were only partially or improperly clad, have been given suitable clothing by the government. It was reported that the women of Mexico, headed by President Diaz's charming wife, Senora Carmen Rubio De Diaz, brought about the good work. The purchase and distribution was made under the direction of the department of public instruction. For thousands of the children it will be the only partially or improperly clad, have been given suitable clothing by the government. It was reported that the

DAILY DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN

BODY'S "POLICE" CELLS
STRONGEST ON SIM-PLE DIET.

Health is dependent upon proper nutrition, aside from injuries and the invasions of bacteria. The blood contains "Police" cells, whose duty is to destroy invaders; and their ability to do this is dependent upon the purity and richness of the blood, which is determined by food, water, air, sunshine, exercise, right mental condition, and the capacity of the organism. Improper food fails to supply to the blood the means of producing to the best advantage the defensive cells and the natural fluids which maintain the economies and develop natural anti-toxins.
A meal consisting of many incompatible foods requires complex secretions for its digestion and elimination, and this detracts from the maintenance of normal conditions. Hence it is important, in sickness and in advanced age especially, to simplify the food. Life has been well maintained for many years on bread and water and on unpolished rice and water. Nuts and figs or nuts and bananas, or rice and milk, or dry bread and milk make a good simple diet for an invalid or old person or for an athlete who wishes the greatest efficiency. It is important to masticate thoroughly and to avoid overeating. Mental condition is also important on account of its influence upon nutrition.

Saying Grace.
I own that I am disposed to say grace upon twenty other occasions in the course of the day besides my dinner. I want a form for settling out upon a pleasant walk, for a moonlight ramble, for a friendly meeting, or a solved problem. Why have we none for books, those spiritual reports
—a grace before Milton—a grace before Shakespeare—a devotional exercise proper to be said before reading
the "Faery Queen"—Charles Lamb.

ATTORNEY GENERAL
GIVES AN OPINION

On Mail Order Methods of Insurance Companies Not Allowed to Do Business in State.

According to an opinion given by State Attorney General Gilbert in answer to inquiries made by Insurance Commissioner Needles, mail order methods of securing business by companies which are not licensed or permitted to be licensed under the state insurance laws, are illegal and the offending companies and the agent through whom the business is transacted, are liable to criminal proceedings and the penalties enforceable through such proceedings. Certain outlawed companies, it is alleged,
have made a practice of soliciting business by mail, conducting examinations of applicants secured in this manner in another state and sending the policies by mail into Wisconsin.
Premium payments are made through the mail and neither the agent nor the company appears in the state in the transaction. In this the chief difficulty in enforcing the state laws, as service can not be served on company nor agents outside the state. The attorney general recommends in his opinion that if service is impossible, the matter be brought to the attention of the legislature with the object of having such an offense constituted a felony and thus made extraditable.

CHURCH COUNCIL

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Afton, Sept. 16.—Invitations have church to the churches of the Janesville Baptist association, asking them to send delegates to participate in a council of ordination, to convene for the purpose of considering the advisability of setting apart to the tor of the Afton church, Mr. E. G.

tion of the candidate results in a favorable decision by the council, the public ordination services will be held in the evening, to which all are cordially invited. In addition to the pastors of the Janesville association, Rev.

UNCLE SAM'S INTERNATIONAL SALESMAN.

Maj. John M. Carson, chief of the bureau of manufactures of the department of commerce and labor.

Washington, D. C.—Maj. Carson,
chief of the bureau of manufactures, has won the title of Uncle Sam's international salesman through his efficient work in assisting the American manufacturers to sell their products in foreign lands. It is the duty of this bureau to gather and furnish information of interest to the business men of America, and in carrying out the work nearly 10,000 letters were written last year by its staff, supplying the business houses with facts as to opportunities offered in foreign countries for the sale of American products. As a result of this work many contracts were awarded to American manufacturers which would otherwise have gone to other countries.

Change in Man.
Men are not the same through all divisions of their ages; thus, experience, self-reflections, and God's mor-els, make in some well tempered minds a kind of translation before death, and men to differ from themselves as well as from other persons.
Hereof the old world afforded many examples to the infancy of latter ages, wherein men too often live by the rule of their inclinations; so that, without any actual prediction, the first day gives the last; men are commonly as they were; or rather, as had dispositions run into worse habits, the evening doth not crown, but sourly concludes the day.—Sir Thomas Browne.

"Hillard? Are you acquainted with Wayne Wayland?" asked Mr. Hillard, with a new light of curiosity in his eyes.

"I know him well," answered the younger man readily. "I have taken steps to sell my season's output in advance. The commission men will be in town shortly, and I shall contract for the entire catch at a stipulated price. Is that satisfactory?"

"Satisfactory," declared Mr. Hillard heartily. "Go ahead and order your machinery and supplies. By the way, what do you know about the mineral possibilities of the region back of Kalvik?"

"Not much; the country is new. There is a woman at Kalvik who has some men out prospecting."

"Cherry Malotte?"

"Do you know her?" asked Boyd with astonishment.

"Very well indeed," then, noting Boyd's evident curiosity, he went on. "You see, I have made a number of mining investments in the north. My operations have turned out so well that I keep several men just to follow new strikes."

"Has Miss Malotte made a strike?"

"Not exactly, but she has uncovered some promising copper prospects."

"What! That is news to me."

Three weeks passed quickly in strenuous effort, and then one morning the partners awoke to the realization that there was little more for them to do.

Through it all Clyde had lent them enthusiastic if feeble assistance, and now that the strain was off he gave fitting expression to his delight by getting drunk. Being temperamental to a degree, he craved company, and, knowing full well the opposition he would encounter from his friends, he annexed a hitherto following of loafers whose time hung heavy and who were at all times eager to applaud a loose tongue so long as it was accompanied by a loose purse. Toward midnight "Fingerless" Fraser, cruising in a nocturnal search for adventure and profit, found him in a semiundressed state, descending rapturously to his train, and upon catching mention of the Kalvik discovery snatched him homeward and put him to bed, after which he locked him into his room, threw the key over the transom and stood guard outside until assured that he slept.

At an early hour the adventurer was peremptorily roused to find Emerson hammering at his door in a fine fury.

"What is this?" demanded Boyd through white lips, thrusting a morning paper before Fraser's sleepy eyes.

"It's a newspaper," yawned the other—a regular newspaper.

"Where did this story come from?"

With menacing finger Boyd indicated a front column, headed:

NEW ENEMY OF THE SALMON TRUST!

FIRST GUN FIRED IN BATTLE FOR FISHERIES!

N. A. T. A. Promised Bitter Fight For Supremacy of Alaskan Waters!

"I don't know."

"You don't know?"

"No! I never read anything but the 'past performance' and the funny page. What does it say?"

"It is the whole story of our enterprise, but ridiculously garbled and exaggerated. It says I have headed a new canning company to buck the trust. It tells about George's fond with March and says we have been secretly preparing to down him. Good Lord! It's liable to queer us with the bank and upset the deal."

"It didn't give it out."

"It is all done in your particularly picturesque style," declared Emerson angrily. "Alton swears he knows nothing about it, so you must have done it. It is too nearly correct to have come from a stranger."

"Well?" inquired Fraser quietly.

"The harm is done, but I want to know who is to blame." When the other made no answer except to stare at him curiously he flamed up, "Why don't you confess?"

For the first time during their acquaintance "Fingerless" Fraser seemed at a loss for words, but whether for shame or some other motive his companion was unable to tell. His nature was so warped that his envious expressions themselves in ways not always easy to follow, and now he merely remarked, with apparent reluctance:

"I'm certainly a hot favorite with

The wheat has been sifted from the chaff, and such medicines as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from roots and herbs and complies with all conditions of the Pure Food and Drug Law, will continue to hold its place as the standard American remedy for female ills.

"WHAT IS THIS?" DEMANDED BOYD.

eyes or open his lips, even when Boyd flung out of the room, convinced that he was the culprit.

A telephone message summoned him to the bank at 11 o'clock the following morning.

"That means trouble," he told George. "Maybe not," the big fisherman replied. "If Hillard took any stock in the story it seems like he'd have jumped you the next day."

"Our machinery is ordered. You realize what it will mean if he backs water now?"

"Sure! We'll have to go to some other bank."

"Humph! I'll write Fraser's check," muttered Emerson. "We have troubles enough without any new ones."

It was with no little anxiety that he asked for the banker at the appointed hour and was shown into an anteroom with the announcement:

"Mr. Hillard is busy. He wishes you to wait."

Inside the glass partition Boyd heard a woman's voice and Hillard's laughter. He took some comfort in the thought that the banker was in good humor at least; but, being too nervous to sit still, he stood at the window, gazing with vacant eyes at the busy street crowds. Facing him across the way was a bulletin in front of a newspaper office, and after a time he noted it among its various items of information the announcement that the mail steamer Queen had arrived at midnight from Skagway. He wondered why Cherry had not written. Surely she must be anxious to know his progress. He should have advised her of his whereabouts.

The door to Hillard's office opened, and he heard the rustle of a woman's dress, then his own name spoken, "Come in, Mr. Emerson."

His attention centered on the approaching interview, he did not glance toward the departing visitor until she stopped suddenly at the outer door and came straight toward him with outstretched hands.

"Boyd!"

He checked himself and turned to face Cherry Malotte.

"Why, Cherry," he ejaculated, "what in the world?" He took her two hands in his, and she laughed up into his face. "In the name of heaven, where did you come from?"

"I arrived last night on the Queen," she said. "Oh, I'm glad to see you!"

"But what brings you to the States? I thought you were in Kal!"

"She's!" She laid a finger on her lips, with a glance over her shoulder to the inner office. "I'll tell you about it later."

"Mr. Hillard will see you now, sir," the attendant announced to Emerson.

"I must talk to you right away," Boyd exclaimed hurriedly. "I won't be long. Can you wait?"

"Certainly! I'll wait right here, only hurry, hurry!"

The pleasure of seeing her was so genuine that he squeezed her hands heartily and entered Hillard's sanctum with a smile on his lips.

Soon he returned. The smile was gone from his face. Hillard had now refused to make the loan of $100,000 required for the enterprise. He told Cherry, "We must have the money or we are ruined," said the girl.

"Yes," answered Boyd wearily. He made an engagement to meet Cherry later and went to visit three other bankers, but they all turned his proposition down.

CHAPTER IX.

CHERRY the next day demonstrated her power over all sorts and conditions of men by reducing the blase young clubman to a state of grinning admiration. "Fingerless" Fraser alone had been mislaid from the center. He had discovered them from a distance, to be sure, and came over to exchange greetings with Cherry, but the disastrous result of the fellow's garrulity was still so fresh in Boyd's mind that he could not invite him to join them, and Fraser, with singular modesty, had quickly withdrawn, to wander lonesomely for awhile till sheer ennui drove him to bed. His dejection awakened little sympathy in Boyd, who felt happier for the removal of his irritating presence.

In the morning Boyd was brought sharply back to a realization of his difficult position by a letter from Mildred Wayland.

"Father and I had another scene over you," wrote Mildred. "It was the first quarrel we ever had, and I'm half sick as a result. I simply can't bear that sort of thing, and we have agreed to drop the subject. What roused him to such a sudden fury I'm sure I don't know."

Boyd knew, however, and the knowledge did not add to his comfort.

It seemed, indeed, as if the trust's enmity had marked him in the eyes of the whole financial world. He was again denied assistance at the banks, and this time in a manner to show him the futility of further effort.

In his perplexity he turned naturally to Cherry, who listened to his tale of repeated failure with furrowed brows, pondering the matter as seriously as if the responsibility had been her own.

"The battle has begun sooner than I expected," she said at length. "I never dreamed they could fix the banks so quickly."

"Somehow I can't believe this is the work of the trust people. I don't see how they could accomplish so much in so short a time. Why, it came like a thunderbolt."

"I hope I am wrong," she answered, "but something unexpected must have happened to change Mr. Hillard's attitude. What could it be except pressure from higher sources?"

"Has he dropped any hint before you?"

"Not a hint. He wouldn't let go of anything. Why, he is too close fitted to drop his 'I's'."

"Will you take dinner with me this evening so that we can talk over my further developments?"

"I am to dine with Mr. Hillard," said the girl.

"Oh! Boyd's tone of disappointment seemed disproportionate to the occasion. He endeavored to disguise his feeling by saying lightly: 'You are breaking into exclusive circles. He lives in quite a palace, I am told.'"

"I'm not dining at his home," Cherry hesitated, and Boyd flashed a sharp glance at her. A faint color flushed her cheeks as she explained, "He could not see me at the office to-day, so he arranged for me to take dinner with him."

"I see," Boyd detected a note hither to strange in his own voice. "I am going to try the Tacoma banks tomorrow. Would you like to run over with me in the morning? The sound trip is beautiful."

"I would love to," she exclaimed. "I may have something to report if I can make Mr. Hillard talk."

"Out of curiosity, I should like to know what influenced him. I'll call for you in time for the 9 o'clock boat," he added as he arose to go. "Meanwhile if you get a hint from Hillard it may be useful."

ORIGIN OF THE GUN SALUTE

Inspired by Desire of One Nation to Show Friendliness for Ships of Another.

The origin of the salute with guns is supposed to have been inspired by the desire of one nation to make a show of friendliness for the ships of another. In the old days of smooth-bore and muzzle-loading cannon it required several minutes to load and fire the gun, and this lapse of time was meant to indicate a friendship trust in the mission of the warship of another power.

In the beginning of the salute in the United States the one for the Union gave one gun for each state. Finally the national salute was fixed at twenty-one guns. The president as well as the presidents of foreign republics and sovereigns of foreign states are saluted with twenty-one guns. The salute for ambassadors of this or other nations is nineteen guns. The vice-president of the United States also is entitled to a nineteen-gun salute.

Admirals and cabinet members are entitled to seventeen guns, ministers plenipotentiary and vice admirals fifteen, and the commanding officer of a ship of war seven.

A few centuries ago England, claiming supreme empire of the seas, required the warships of other nations to lower sail on meeting an English man of war. This custom long ago disappeared, although small salutes of English warships still let go their sheets when passing a flag officer.

Australian Rabbit Industry.

In many towns rabbit killing and freezing and preparing the skins for export is a growing asset of great value, especially during the winter season, when it enables men who have no other occupation to make a good living and spend considerable money at the country stores.

Golden Text—Render therefore unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's, and unto God the things that are God's. Matt. xxii:21.

Verse 15—Why did the Pharisees want to entangle Jesus in his talk?

Why is it that Christians of one creed often feel bitter towards those of another creed, and sometimes try to "entangle" them, as the Pharisees did Jesus?

Verse 16—Why did not the Pharisees go to Jesus personally?

Why did the Pharisees associate with their own disciples the Herodians, in their attempt to ensnare Jesus?

Why did they pay Jesus this great compliment, seeing they were so opposed to him?

Is it ever right to lie for a good cause? Why or why not?

What good lessons may we learn from these had men?

Verses 17-21—If these men had really been truth seekers, how would Jesus have probably answered their question, as to whether it was right for the Jews to pay taxes to Caesar?

What difference is there between the moral obligation for a man to pay his legal taxes, and to pay his butcher bill for example?

What was Jesus' own practice as to paying taxes? (See Matt. xviii:24-27.)

Jesus rebuked these hypocrites sharply, to what extent should we follow his example in this?

Point out wherein the remarkable skill of Jesus' answer consisted.

Verses 22—Why was it great folly for them to suppose they could entangle Jesus in his words?

Can you cite the case of any who have opposed God, without bringing disaster upon themselves?

Verses 34-40—Why is it that men still persist in opposing God, when history shows that every man who has done so has suffered loss, and that all who persisted have been destroyed?

What is the chief object in life?

What can we do, or what must we be, in order to attain the chief object of life?

If a man does love God with all his powers, and his neighbor as himself, does he perfectly please God?

If love is the dominating power in a man's life, it makes the will and the motive perfect, and thus God is pleased; but does Jesus teach that love guarantees perfect actions? Give your reasons.

What is a proper self love, that which Jesus says must be the standard of our loving our neighbor?

May every one attain to loving God with all the heart, and his neighbor as himself, and how can it be done? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Verses 41-46—Why could not the Pharisees answer Jesus' question as to whose was the Kingdom of God?

What is the answer to the question of Jesus as to how the Christ could be David's son and also his Lord?

WASH FOUR TIMES A YEAR

Old Dutch Custom of Quarterly Clothes-Washing Required Immense Quantities of Linen.

Every one has heard of the German and Dutch method of accumulating soiled clothes and of having a washday only two or three times a year. Not every one realizes, perhaps, that the custom was brought over to this country from Holland and that the Dutch settlers long continued its practice. In these days of ever-ready laundry, it is strange to read of the laborious period which came to our New Amsterdam ancestors four times a year. Helen Evergreen Smith tells about it in "Colonial Days and Ways."

The custom of quarterly clothes-washing was maintained notwithstanding our summer heats and the immense quantities of clothes necessary to keep up the state of cleanliness required by Dutch instincts. A New Englander who had married a citizen of New York writes, in 1760, of this practice which was undoubtedly strange to her.

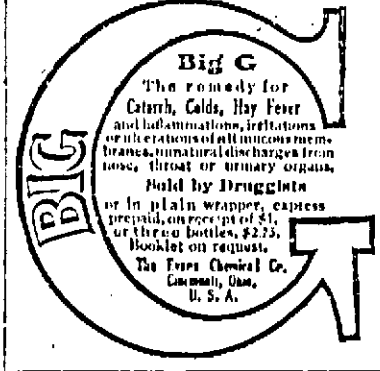

"Grandmother Blum is so deep in her quarterly wash this week, that she has time only to send her love."

The washing was done in an out-house called the bleockery, where the water was hotted in immense kettles, and all the other processes of the laundry work carried on. The work required was not less than a week, frequently two weeks.

During the time preceding this cruelly hard labor, the soiled clothes were accumulated in very large hamper of open basketwork. This custom originated the necessity for the great stores of linen with which every bride was provided.—Youth's Companion.

Would Make World Better. We need more kindness. More sympathy. More hours spent in the look-out for good. We want to forget such words as steel and lie and deceive. And, as sure as the sun shines, the world's people will rise and call us blessed. We will find them as we have reflected them within the mirror of our own charityableness.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, September 16, 1870.—Jottings.—There are thirteen vacant stores in this city, it is the fact significant enough or must we wait till grass grows on Main street before opening our eyes to the cause?

The goose ordinance has not produced much of a panic among those feathered bipeds. They roam the streets in utter defiance of the law depriving them of liberty.

Mr. Bahnd, a stranger in this city, stopped into the store of G. H. Mercy, on West Milwaukee street, recently, made a few small purchases, paying for them with some change from his vest pocket. Shortly after leaving the store he unlocked his pocketbook containing some 200 dollars, which he had carried in a pantaloons pocket. Going back in haste to the store, his mind was relieved of much anxiety to find that the proprietor had his pocketbook in safe keeping for his return.

Workmen have resumed operations on the cupola of the court house.

THE GREAT AMERICAN CAN.
To the Malay peninsula every year go about 1,300,000 one-gallon tin cans, containing American petroleum. Thousands of the cans are used as water buckets. The interior of a Malay, a Tamil, or a Chinese home contains American tin cans of all sizes and shapes, put to some useful purpose.

Sieves are made by puncturing holes thousands of times in one side, from the edge by removing one side, curving two sides and attaching a large wooden handle. Baking and cooking utensils of all kinds are also skillfully manufactured from them and may be seen in thousands of homes.

For storing articles of food against ant onslaughts the tin can is a blessing. Hundreds of men are engaged in manufacturing tin cans into funnels, pepper and salt canisters, coconut and nutmeg graters, lamps, biscuit tins, tea and coffee pots, ladles, mugs, cake paties, Chinese pipes, oil pumps, money boxes and the framework for false teeth.

So necessary has the American tin can become to these people that to be deprived of its manifold uses would cause a real hardship.—Consul-General Du Bois, Singapore.

PROTECTING THE MEN.
"All women of whatever age, rank, profession or degree, whether virgins, maids or widows, that shall from after the passing of this act impose upon or betray into matrimony any of His Majesty's male subjects by seduction, bribery, promises, artifices, flattery, false hair, Spanish wool, iron stays, hoops, high-heeled shoes or bolstered hips, shall incur the penalty of the laws now in force against witchcraft, sorcery and such like misdemeanors, and that the marriage, upon conviction, shall stand null and void."—An act of Parliament in the reign of Charles II.

THE FLASH OF GENIUS.
A man should learn to detect and watch that gleam of light which flashes across his mind from within more than the lustre of the firmament of stars and sages. Yet he dismisses without notice his thought, because it is his. In every work of genius we recognize our own rejected thoughts; they come back to us with a certain alienated majesty.—Emerson.
